The Valley

Fall 2016

An aerial watercolor illustration of the Lebanon Valley College campus. The drawing shows various academic buildings, a large library with a prominent glass facade, a sports field, and numerous trees. The style is soft and artistic, with a muted color palette of greens, blues, and earthy tones. Overlaid on the center of the image is the word 'ONLINE' in large, white, serif capital letters. The word 'ONLINE' is positioned such that it appears to be floating above the campus scene, with the 'O' and 'N' being particularly large and prominent. The word 'CAMPUS' is written in smaller, white, serif capital letters, centered below 'ONLINE'. The overall composition suggests a connection between the physical campus and online learning.

The LVC master plan will guide the College in its continued cultivation of the beauty and functionality of our campus. The plan's principles are rooted in the concept of One Campus—a campus that is connected, welcoming, true to LVC history, grounded in responsible stewardship, and a framework for future growth.

Inside Cover: Roses bloom in the Leon and Ethel Yeiser Rose Garden. In 1982, Leon took over garden duties from Professor O. Pass Bollinger, Class of 1928, who planted the original garden. During his 20 years, Leon used personal resources to expand the garden to its current size. His son, Kevin Yeiser, has maintained the roses since Leon's passing in 2002.

Dear Friends,

I am pleased to present One Campus, the master plan that will guide the College's physical development during the next decade, in this issue's feature story. The plan proceeds from a single, but powerful concept: we are one campus, all 358 acres. Not parcels divided by roads and railroads, but one campus united by the enterprise of learning and student development and connected in very real and very visible, accessible ways.

One Campus is a companion to our strategic plan, Envision 2020. The plan is a product of the community's shared vision and aspirations. During the past two years, students, faculty, staff, and friends of Lebanon Valley have contributed to and commented on the broad concepts in the plan and many of the details. I am especially grateful to the members of the Campus Master Plan Steering Committee for their dedication to this project. We also relied on an outstanding group of planners, designers, and architects. It would be difficult to overstate our debt to the extraordinary ability and professionalism of the team at Ayers Saint Gross—Adam Gross, Amelle Schultz, Ann Dutton, Amy Cuddy '06, and Lisa Keith—who collaborated with us during this period.

The plan approaches the beauty and utility of our campus holistically. While the implementation of the plan will occur in stages, One Campus calls for a distinct sequence that allows work to begin soon, proceed for a decade or more, and still remain "on plan."

On behalf of the trustees, faculty, students, and staff, I look forward to our work together as we realize the vision of One Campus and a very bright future for Lebanon Valley College.

Warmly,
Lewis E. Thayne, Ph.D.

Board of Trustees

Wesley T. Dellinger '75, P'05, chair of the College's Board of Trustees, announced that Gregory A. High '92, Dr. Katie Oriel, and Rebecca "Becca" Whalen '18 have been appointed to serve on the board. Dellinger also announced that Jeffrey A. Bates '16 and Dr. Ken Yarnall completed their duties on the board as of June 30.

High, who graduated cum laude from LVC, is vice president and an owner of the High companies headquartered in Lancaster. Oriel is a LVC associate professor of physical therapy and Whalen is a senior politics major with minors in business administration and law & society.

Campus Transformations

Several campus and adjacent facilities have been transformed under the leadership of Dr. Lewis E. Thayne, LVC president. In particular, several major projects were recently completed, or will soon be completed. These projects include construction of the Shankroff Tennis Center, a collaboration with PennDOT to revitalize White Oak Street and the major Route 934 thoroughfare through campus, revitalizations of the Vernon and Doris Bishop Library and

Frederic K. Miller Chapel, and vast upgrades to the Mary Capp Green Residence Hall. In addition, plans for the Jeanne and Edward H. Arnold Health Professions Pavilion and other campus enhancements are well underway as part of the College's new campus master plan, One Campus. (See pp. 16-23 for additional information)

New Majors

A key focus area of the College's new strategic plan, Envision 2020, is delivering educational excellence and engaged learning. In response to this strategic focus, LVC has added seven new academic programs: accounting/MBA (accelerated 3+1), analytical finance, athletic training, communication sciences & disorders, exercise science, international business, and speech-language pathology. These new majors will enable the College to remain competitive and expand its recruitment market globally. Several of these new programs, as well as other health-related majors under review, will be housed in the new $20-million Jeanne and Edward H. Arnold Health Professions Pavilion, opening in 2018. The Pavilion is made possible through an extraordinary $10-million challenge gift to the College made by the Arnolds. Visit www.lvc.edu/supportlvc/ to participate.

Lifetime Vickroy Associates Honored

LVC recognized five families as new Lifetime Vickroy Associates during the Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society and 150th Anniversary dinner in April. The Vickroy Society was created in honor of the College's founding president, Rev. Thomas Rhys Vickroy. The new honorees have each donated a cumulative total of $100,000 or more to the College, in addition to being active figures in their communities.

Dr. Kristen R. Angstadt '74 is a member of the Board of Trustees who serves as co-vice chair and on numerous committees. She generously supports the College in numerous areas, including The Valley Fund, the Art & Visual Culture Department, and the David A. Hoffman, M.D., Memorial Prize Fund. Dr. Angstadt and her late husband, Dr. David A. Hoffman, are recognized with space in the Vernon and Doris Bishop Library, Heilman Center, Neidig-Garber Science Center, and Clyde A. Lynch Memorial Hall.

Karen A. Lewis Schmitt '80 and Andrew W. Schmitt provide generous support to The Valley Fund and the Dr. Bryan Hearsey Scholarship for Actuarial Science. The Schmitts established the Karen Lewis Schmitt '80 Scholarship for Actuarial Science in 2014, which allows the recipient to intern with Maiden Holdings, where Karen serves as president. Karen was a Lazin Resident in 2011 and has been a member of the College's Board of Trustees since 2013.

Benjamin B. and Suzanne M. Shankroff are proud grandparents of Kelsey '13 and Jordan '15. Thanks to the Shankroff's generosity, LVC was able to reconfigure and upgrade its tennis facilities this summer. The new Shankroff Tennis Center is named in their honor. The Shankroffs have also been longtime supporters of the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership and The Valley Fund.

Tracey A. Smith Stover '91, chair of the Board of Trustees Advancement Committee

John J. Stouffer '60 and Sandra Stetler Stouffer '62 are loyal supporters of The Valley Fund and the Music Department. They remain connected to the College through the "LVC Gang," a group of alumni who meet monthly for brunch. In addition, the Stouffers are members of the Miles Rigor Society, which recognizes and celebrates alumni and friends who have planned for Lebanon Valley College's future in their estate.

David P. Stover '91 and Tracey A. Smith Stover '91 continue to give back to their alma mater. David remains actively engaged with former football coaches and teammates, supporting the Blue & White Club. Tracey is a member of the College's Board of Trustees and was vice chair of the Envision 2020 Strategic Planning Committee. Their generosity supports The Valley Fund, high-impact experiences in athletics, and complex enhancements for athletics and recreation.

Alumni Awards

Major General Ross S. Plasterer '57, USMC, retired, received LVC's 2016 Distinguished Alumni Award, and Dr. Marianne E. Boltz '92, Dr. Charles R. Mershon '80, and Jay S. Stanton '66 were honored with Alumni Citations during the Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society and 150th Anniversary

dinner in April. The Alumni Awards Committee selected the recipients.

Maj. Gen. Plasterer earned a bachelor's degree in accounting at Lebanon Valley, then joined the United States Marine Corps. During his extraordinary career, he logged more than 6,800 flight hours as a helicopter transport pilot. His service included two tours in Vietnam and multiple tours in Okinawa, Japan. Maj. Gen. Plasterer served heads of state, including President Lyndon B. Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Dr. Boltz graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor's degree in biology and a minor in psychology. She is a pediatric optometrist, low vision specialist, and assistant professor of ophthalmology at the Penn State Milton S. Hershey Medical Center's Department of Ophthalmology. Dr. Boltz provides clinical and didactic education to medical students, as well as to residents in ophthalmology, family medicine, and internal medicine.

Dr. Mershon, who has practiced medicine since 1987, graduated from Lebanon Valley with a bachelor's degree in biology. Through his comprehensive family medicine practice, Cornerstone Family Health Associates, Dr. Mershon provides a Christ-centered ministry aimed at serving his patients' physical, emotional, and spiritual needs.

Stanton is a former science teacher and high school basketball coach who graduated from Lebanon Valley with a bachelor's degree in biology. He participated in basketball, cross country, and track & field, and held the College's discus record for several decades. Stanton, who has a passion for horticulture, has fostered a variety of community programs and events.

Frederic K. Miller Chapel Revitalized

This spring, Frederic K. Miller Chapel underwent a major revitalization through the generosity of loyal alumni and friends. The project was the first Chapel renovation since the building's construction four decades ago. The renovations feature updates to the stage/performance area and lobby, new audio-visual technology including a fixed 16-foot by 9-foot screen, and significantly improved general and stage area lighting. These enhancements will transform the space into an inviting large-audience, multi-purpose venue, while maintaining the chapel's traditional identity as a quiet place of reflection.

Lois Brong Miller '61 provided the lead gift and the sanctuary has been renamed in her honor. Dr. Susan Engle '78, Richard A. Zimmerman H'92, and Nancy C. Zimmerman '53 also provided financial support and the lobby was renamed the Engle Family Lobby in honor of the Engle family's long association with the College, which dates back to the 1890s. In addition, the Engle Family Lobby now features an icon painted by Dorothy Thayne, LVC visiting artist and scholar.

Multicultural Affairs Reorganized

This summer, the Office of Multicultural Affairs was reorganized into the Office of Intercultural Affairs & Inclusive Programs (OIA). Renata Williams was hired as the office's first director of intercultural affairs & inclusive programming, beginning her role in August. She is a seasoned student affairs professional having held positions at Manhattan College, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Russell Sage College, and Fulton Montgomery Community College.

Part of the office's mission is to provide leadership and direction for the development of educational, cultural, and social programs that enhance intercultural understanding. OIA will also facilitate a wide range of activities to help students, faculty, administrators, and staff develop programs, curricula, and policies that promote and foster an appreciation of peoples, cultures, and perspectives on a national and international level.

Lazin Series Continues

Six alumni and community leaders visited campus for the 16th Annual Lazin Distinguished Leader in Residence Series in March. Named in honor of Dr. Charles Lazin '41 and Malcolm Lazin, Esq., '65, the Lazin Series enriches students' educational experience by inviting accomplished LVC alumni and community leaders—known as Lazin Residents—to campus for several days each spring.

This year's residents were Mary Jean "M.J." Bishop '84, director of the William E. Kirwan Center for Academic Innovation for the University System of Maryland; Joyce Davis, president and CEO of the World Affairs Council of Harrisburg and director of communications for the City of Harrisburg; Shawn House-Fedor '94, director of snacks and adjacencies product development for The Hershey Company; Edgar "Ed" Morgan '63, retired country director in Nigeria for the International Foundation for Electoral Systems; Kathy Prime, chief learning and talent development officer for High Industries; and Malcolm Lazin '65, executive director of the Equality Forum.

80th Annual Concert Choir Tour

In celebration of its 80th anniversary, the Concert Choir conducted a three-state tour this spring, performing in Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Led by Dr. Matthew Erpelding, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities, the five-performance tour presented "Genius Loci—The Spirit of a Place," an ode to the ancient Romans, who believed that some places were protected by a powerful spirit known as its genius loci.

Green Power—LVC #1

In April, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recognized LVC as the Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC) Champion in the 2015–2016 College & University Green Power Challenge. The College, which uses more renewable energy than any other school in the MAC athletic conference, was credited with reducing its carbon footprint by 50 percent through its use of renewable energy.

That same month, Dr. Lewis E. Thayne, LVC president, signed the Second Nature American College & University Presidents Climate Commitment, pledging carbon neutrality in the College's near future. The day prior, a green roof was unveiled above Rosemary Yuhas Commons. This student-led initiative will provide greens and produce for the dining hall and energy for the building.

Internationalization, Diversity, and Inclusion Workshop

Dr. Fanta Aw, assistant vice president of campus life and Hurst Senior Professorial Lecturer in the School of International Service at American University, held a professional development workshop for LVC faculty and staff in March. Dr. Aw, an expert in the field of campus internationalization and inclusive excellence initiatives, discussed “The Importance of Campus Internationalization, Diversity, and Inclusion.”

Service-Learning Trip to Peru

Fourteen students and two faculty advisors traveled to Peru in May as part of the College's second international service-learning trip. The trip offers LVC students an opportunity to experience extreme cultural immersion in an international country. The first such trip was in 2014.

Dr. Gabriella McEvoy, associate professor of Spanish, and Rev. Dr. Paul Fullmer, chaplain and director of service and volunteerism, once again led the group of dedicated volunteers. Throughout the transformative week, students immersed themselves in Peruvian culture by learning about and working with the people of the Misminay village, where they participated in cultural and agricultural experiences.

International Food Festival Enhanced Through Inaugural Grant

LVC's Global Education Club (GEC) was one of the inaugural recipients of a President's Student Innovation Fund Grant. GEC used the grant to enhance the now annual International Food Festival in April. The grant enabled the student group to purchase additional ingredients and unique T-shirts, add more international food options, and expand the program to the entire College community. Nearly 30 tables featured cuisine from different countries, along with takeaway recipe cards.

Pangaea Fashion Show Launches Unity Week

In April, the College observed Unity Week, an event dedicated to bringing awareness to community and global issues, as well as celebrating cultural differences and their contributions to our community. The Pangaea Fashion Show, featuring 25 student models sporting clothing representing their respective cultures, kicked off the week. Four students also gave poetry readings. The week included films, a church service, an Inquiry presentation on social justice, brown bag lunches aimed at bringing awareness to world issues, and a BraveZone training session.

Tia Dandridge '18, creator of the Pangaea Fashion Show, said, "A lot of people don't really display their culture, so the fashion show is a way for people to showcase their culture."

Vidya Lala '17 Wins Prestigious Scholarship

Vidya Lala, a senior biology major minoring in chemistry, received the Good Citizen Scholarship from the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities of Pennsylvania. The scholarship is awarded through a statewide competition to students "who have shown an extraordinary commitment to community service, and who have demonstrated creativity in shaping their volunteer activities."

Lala, who plans to attend medical school, is one of two students serving on LVC's Board of Trustees. She is active on campus and in the community, including serving as president of Colleges Against Cancer and participating in the Student Summit on Inclusive Excellence.

Arnold Grant Sends Students to Brazil

In June, five students joined Dr. Shelly Moorman-Stahlman, professor of music and College organist, on a trip to Brazil as part of the Edward H. Arnold and Jeanne Donlevy Arnold Experiential Grant Program. They met up with some of the Brazilian exchange students who had spent three weeks at The Valley in January. They also taught Brazilian students how to play the handbells and pipe organ, and performed for the children at the School of Music in Jundiai, Brazil. Dr. Moorman-Stahlman taught a piano master class, among other academic activities, and the LVC students played the largest functioning organ in Brazil at the monastery in São Paulo.

LVC Welcomes New Coaches and Athletic Trainer

The Flying Dutchmen recently named Joey Lye, Canadian national softball team captain, as the College's head softball coach; Isabel Menard, a former NCAA Division I player and international coach, as LVC's first women's ice hockey coach; and Chuck Yasinski, a 20-year veteran of providing injury care to student-athletes, as head athletic trainer. Lye replaces legendary coach Stacey Hollinger, who was promoted to associate director of athletics, and Yasinski replaces long-time head trainer Erin Ulrich, who has joined the College's athletic training faculty.

Men's Basketball Schedules George Mason, F&M

The men's basketball team will meet its first NCAA Division I opponent since facing Bucknell in 1986. The team will play the George Mason Patriots, members of the Atlantic 10 Conference, on Nov. 15 in Fairfax, Va. The team will also renew its historic rivalry with Franklin & Marshall College, whom they will host at home on Nov. 27.

150TH ANNIVERSARY HALL OF FAME CLASS

Five alumni will be inducted into the Lebanon Valley College Athletic Hall of Fame on Oct. 7 during Homecoming Weekend, which celebrates the College's 150th Anniversary. The five former student-athletes represent six sports and the College's first husband and wife inductees: Beth Light Brennan '01 (field hockey), John Brennan '01 (men's golf), Natalie Goodfellow '07 (volleyball, women's track & field), Dr. Scott Marek '04, D'06 (football), and Jennifer Northcott '05 (women's basketball).

Three Named Academic All-Americans

A trio of LVC student-athletes were named Academic All-Americans by the College Sports Information Directors of America, honoring their outstanding athletic and academic achievements during the past academic year. They join the College's 22 previous winners.

Sammy Bost '17 (softball) was named to the Academic All-America First Team, Kelsey Patrick '16 (cross country) was named to the Second Team, and Olivia Jendrzejewski '17 (track & field) was named to the Third Team. Bost was also named to the National Fastpitch Coaches Association First-Team and a Hero Sports DIII All-American.

Kelsey Patrick '16

Sammy Bost '17

Andy Orr '18

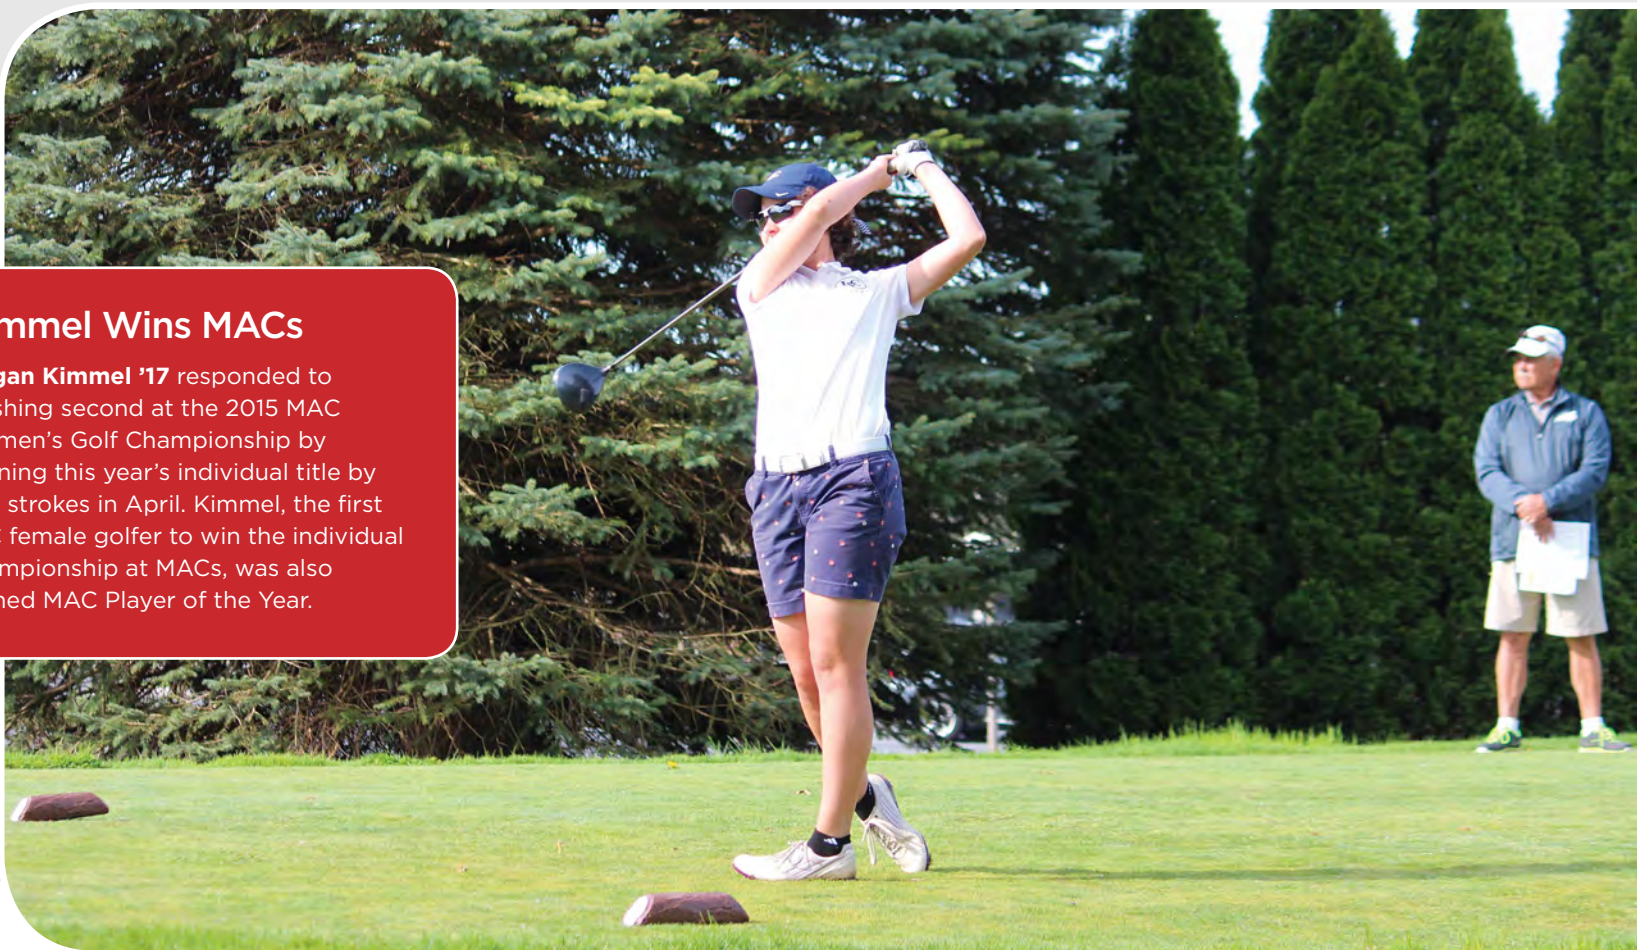

Orr and Light Lead Men's Basketball

Andy Orr '18 and Sam Light '18 led the team to one of their most successful seasons in recent history. This success led to Orr being named MAC Commonwealth Player of the Year, ECAC South Player of the Year, a DIII News All-American, and to several other accolades. Orr is the sixth LVC men's player to be named conference player of the year, joining Mike Rhoades '95, Andy Panko '99, Steve Horst, Esq., '01, J.D. Byers '05, and Anthony Trautman '11.

Orr and Light were named MAC Commonwealth All-Conference First-Team selections and were picked for the City of Basketball Love All-Area Second-Team. Brad McAlester, head coach, earned his third MAC Commonwealth Coach of the Year honor.

Kimmel Wins MACs

Megan Kimmel '17 responded to finishing second at the 2015 MAC Women's Golf Championship by winning this year's individual title by two strokes in April. Kimmel, the first LVC female golfer to win the individual championship at MACs, was also named MAC Player of the Year.

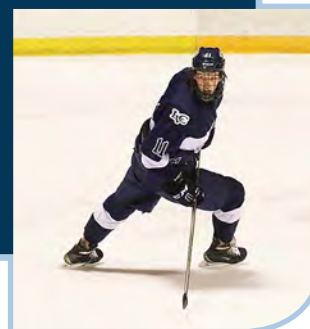

Keefer and Minnich Named First Team

Koty Keefer '18 and Austin Minnich '17 received MAC Commonwealth First Team All-Conference lacrosse honors this spring. Coleman Wagner '18 and Cameron Epple '19 were named Second Team, and Nick Mowry '19 received Honorable Mention.

Hovanec Named Rookie of the Year

Bryan Hovanec '19 was named ESCHL Rookie of the Year and two teammates—Mike Straub '19 (All-Rookie Team) and Jake Thomas '17 (All-Defensive Team)—received post-season recognition after the team made it to the Elite Eight of the ACHA National Tournament in Chicago. The team, which lost 7-6 in the final eight to the nation's #1 team, returns to NCAA competition this fall.

Bryan Hovanec '19

Moatz Named Defensive Player of the Year

Emily Moatz '16 was named MAC Commonwealth and Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Division III South Defensive Player of the Year, and was named to the Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaches Association (IWLCA) Metro Region Second-Team. Emma Jones '18 joined Moatz on the IWLCA Second Team. Sam Boyce '16 joined Moatz on the All-ECAC South First Team and competed, along with Shelby Morris '16, in the IWLCA All-Star game.

Moatz, Jones, and Boyce were All-MAC Commonwealth First Team selections, while Morris and Tori Kuntz '16 were named to the Second Team.

Jendrzejewski Named All-American

Olivia Jendrzejewski '17

capped her outstanding junior campaign by earning All-America honors at the NCAA Division III Outdoor Track & Field Championships this spring. She earned a fifth-place finish in the high jump event. Jendrzejewski, the NCAA Indoor Track & Field High Jump National Runner-Up, became the first jumper in program history to earn NCAA All-America honors in indoor and outdoor competition.

The Architects and Planners at Ayers Saint Gross Bring

BY CHRISTINE BRANDT LITTLE

Lebanon Valley College's One Campus master plan, initiated under the leadership of Dr. Lewis E. Thayne, president, is undeniably a product of The Valley community—it depends integrally on the input and insight of everyone from LVC trustees, Leadership Council members, facilities services, and administrators to faculty, staff, students, and alumni.

But One Campus was given form and brought to life in collaboration with the team of gifted planners, designers, and architects at Ayers Saint Gross (ASG), a renowned architectural and planning firm with offices in Arizona, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C. The firm has built an international reputation in the area of campus master planning, with a client list that includes the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Johns Hopkins University, and Harvard Medical School.

LVC's team at ASG, led by firm principal Adam Gross and senior associate Amelle Schultz, visited The Valley numerous times, holding roundtables with the One Campus Steering Committee, as well as with Dr. Thayne, Steven O'Day, One Campus committee chair, and the community's many stakeholders. In addition, what this team of veteran campus planners found at The Valley surprised them: "At Lebanon Valley there was a very interested and engaged campus community," Schultz explains. "And it wasn't just one aspect of the ment comes from the College getting out ahead of us with open forums with students, faculty, and staff. That was unique."

Throughout the planning process, the team from ASG campus community—it was everything from the Board of Trustees' engagement and depth of questions to the thoughtful questions and ideas that the students raised with us, as well as a significant amount of input from the LVC Leadership Council, faculty, and staff. That comprehensive involve-sought to preserve and enhance the distinctive spirit they encountered at The Valley. "Lebanon Valley is a very personable place—right away you get the feeling of an integrated community," Schultz says. "So while the plan is expanding the campus into a larger area, we wanted to develop it in a way that would still have focused areas of activity, so that when you're walking down a pathway you're likely to bump into somebody you know. We tried to develop the plan in a condensed way that would still have this same community feel."

"We were very fortunate to have a recent Lebanon Valley alumna, Amy Cuddy '06, on our team," Gross adds. Cuddy works in the firm's marketing department. "She added insight regarding the College culture—there are several ideas in the plan generated from our conversations with her."

In seeking to preserve the friendly community feel of The Valley, the ASG team strove to meet the College's future needs without interfering with the many things they saw going well on campus. "The plan helps the College meet its mission of educating students and providing a warm and comfortable residential liberal arts college environment—which is a very unique kind of environment, and one that can be easily damaged," Gross says. "Therefore, the plan contains several recommendations for renovating buildings. In this way it seeks to wisely guide the College in its investments so that it can use precious resources in the most impactful way."

This emphasis on renovation over new construction also responded to the College community's desire to integrate environmental sustainability into its future. "The most sustainable building is the one you don't build," Gross notes. "So if we can reuse existing facilities, make them more usable and popular as teaching spaces, student hangout spaces, or even residence halls, that obviates the need for additional building. Moreover, by renovating an existing building to make it more efficient, you can make it more sustainable."

The pages that follow provide a comprehensive overview of Lebanon Valley's One Campus master plan, as well as some of ASG's specific recommendations.

Place Matters:

The One Campus Master Plan

—Ayers Saint Gross One Campus Report

The character of any college or university is intimately tied to its campus. When you think of Lebanon Valley College, images of the Academic Quad on a crisp fall afternoon may come to mind, or the leafy shade along North College Avenue. The tranquility of the Peace Garden. The broad pastoral vistas of North Campus.

Whether we recognize it consciously or not, these campus spaces are an essential part of being a member of the College community. Lebanon Valley's campus is central to forming the character of our students, attracting talented faculty and administrators, and nurturing an ongoing sense of connection among our alumni.

Dr. Lewis E. Thayne, president, sensed this uniqueness when he first arrived at The Valley in 2012. He also began envisioning a bright future for his new home—one that looked far beyond the traditional three- to five-year strategic plans most colleges are fond of in the U.S.

Recognizing the importance of place to the experience and success of the College, two years ago the Board of Trustees commissioned a Campus Master Plan Steering Committee to develop a comprehensive plan to guide The Valley's physical evolution through the coming decade. This past February, the board unanimously and enthusiastically adopted the One Campus master plan, and steps toward its implementation are already underway.

The One Campus project was undertaken at a unique time in Lebanon Valley's history. It was developed alongside the College's recently adopted strategic plan, Envision 2020—and both endeavors were timed to coincide with Lebanon Valley's 150th Anniversary. The concurrence of these

“While One Campus is multifaceted and comprehensive, my favorite part of the plan is the way the north and south of campus are finally linked through a continuous corridor, which is ingeniously linked by bridges and landscaped paths extending from the town of Annville to the picturesque farmland to the north.”

—Dr. Grant Taylor, chair of art & visual culture events encouraged deep reflection into the College’s rich past and present identity—and helped create a cohesive vision for One Campus. Like the strategic plan, One Campus seeks to articulate and give life to the College’s most deeply held values and loftiest aspirations.

One Campus proceeds from a single but powerful concept: one school, one community, one campus, united by the endeavor of learning and growth, and connected in real and important ways.

The collaborative plan incorporates the input of students, faculty, LVC Leadership Council members, Office of Facilities Services, staff, administrators, trustees, and alumni, and thus embodies the community’s shared vision of the College’s present and future. This input was then rendered into a detailed plan through the professional expertise of the planners, designers, and architects at the renowned design firm of Ayers Saint Gross (see article on page 16).

“What’s been so great about the master planning process is that it’s full of optimism and expansive thinking,” says Dr. Grant Taylor, chair of art & visual culture, professor of art history, and member of the One Campus Steering Committee. “The future feels full of wonderful possibilities. The thought of realizing our most ambitious ideas and long-held dreams through One Campus is truly exciting.”

Predicated as it is on the input of the College community, One Campus effectively embodies the unique personality of The Valley, Taylor adds. “Since LVC is a private liberal arts college, it can shape its own future with relative autonomy. In One Campus, we discern LVC's unique fingerprint of a college continually seeking to achieve its core mission. We see our central desire to unify our community around transformative educational and residential spaces, all while heightening the renowned natural beauty of the campus."

As a long-term master plan, One Campus is comprehensive and far-reaching, but it's also designed to be dynamic and adaptable to the evolving needs of the College community, as well as changes in programs, priorities, and funding. In the end, the central tenet of One Campus is a call for Lebanon Valley to sustain and enhance an inclusive, richly layered environment that is deeply rooted in place and highly responsive to student needs and its historic mission in a context of constant change.

OVERCOMING BARRIERS

The planners at Ayers Saint Gross (ASG) noted that despite an overwhelmingly positive campus experience, the College admittedly faces significant barriers that divide campus into separate, somewhat isolated sections that could be more effectively united into a cohesive whole. A prime example: the Norfolk Southern Rails that separate the campus core from North Campus. To enhance campus connections and create added vitality, One Campus makes bridging this divide a top priority.

Another challenge identified by the One Campus team: blurred campus "edges" and entry points. One Campus seeks to remedy this challenge by celebrating the transition to campus and marking campus entry points in a more welcoming way. Also cited for improvement are the College properties west of North White Oak Street

“From a student’s perspective, the prospective residence halls are most exciting, especially since they are suite-style or apartment-style rooms. The other exciting thing is the accessibility changes, such as the bridge over the railroad tracks. ... It’s fun to imagine my kids going to Lebanon Valley and living on a campus that has seen at least some of these changes.”

—Megan Cook '17, One Campus Steering Committee member

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

The One Campus master plan addresses LVC's immediate needs while looking ahead to future transformations, providing a comprehensive vision for campus growth for years to come.

Initiatives: Create Connections

Initiatives will knit the campus into one cohesive whole and address urgent program needs.

- New Jeanne and Edward H. Arnold Health Professions Pavilion
- Improved Pedestrian Bridge Over Rails
- Student "Backyard"
- Sheridan Avenue Improvements
- White Oak Street Improvements
- North Campus Residence Hall (East)
- Visitors Center Addition
- Bollinger Plaza Expansion

Future Initiatives: Strengthen Edges

Future initiatives create a strong campus face and support program expansion.

- North Campus Academic Quad
- Athletics Pedestrian Spine Improvements (East)
- North Campus Academic Building, Phase I
- North Campus Residence Hall (West), Phase I
- Henry and Gladys Arnold Field Bleacher Expansion
- Heisey Barn Renovation
- White Oak Street Academic Building (North)
- White Oak Street Academic Building (South)
- Lebanon Street Improvements
- Administration Building/Humanities Center Green Improvements

Long-term Initiatives: Reinforce the Core

Long-term initiatives populate undeveloped pockets throughout campus to further reinforce campus order and intent.

- North Campus Residence Hall (West), Phase II
- North Campus Academic Building, Phase II
- Athletics Pedestrian Spine Improvements (West)
- Potential Main Street Academic Building
- College Avenue Residence Hall

(Rt. 934), which feel remote and disconnected from the rest of campus—the plan seeks to integrate this area into the College's community in a way that utilizes these spaces for future growth.

ADDRESSING SUSTAINABILITY

From the beginning, a core principal of the One Campus project has been environmental sustainability. The plan incorporates sustainable practices throughout, from its attention to energy consumption and storm-water runoff to recommendations for renovating existing structures as an alternative to new construction—a strategy that's not entirely new to the College. ASG senior associate Amelle Schultz points to LVC's recent renovation of the lower level of the Allan W. Mund College Center, which led to the establishment of the Lebegern Learning Commons: "That's a perfect example of a space that had been forgotten and under-utilized, but with some investment became a hub of activity," she says.

Walkability is another facet of sustainability that's embedded into the plan. "We shouldn't be driving our cars from one side of campus to another," Schultz notes. "If we build these pleasant seamless connections across campus, people will park their cars once and walk from one end of campus to another."

SOME SPECIFICS

Overall, One Campus is designed to guide the College toward a physical presence that is connected and welcoming, true to Lebanon Valley's history and character, and grounded in responsible stewardship, while providing a framework for future growth. Plan priorities call for strong pedestrian connections across campus (Create Connections), clearly identifiable campus "thresholds" (Strengthen Edges)," well defined open spaces and generous parking and service facilities (Reinforce the Core). Here are some of the key changes called for by One Campus:

Enhancing internal campus connections for added vitality:

- Creating a portal to North Campus. Replacing the existing pedestrian bridge with one that is welcoming, as well as compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act.
- Expanding Maud P. Laughlin Hall and Bollinger Plaza. Reorganizing Laughlin Hall to better address Main Street.
- Improving Sheridan Avenue. Reconfiguring the roadway to create an elongated oval celebrating entry onto campus.
- Strengthening the Athletics/ Recreation pedestrian spine. Creating a more robust, tree-lined walk that extends through North Campus.

Strengthening campus edges and enhancing the sense of arrival:

- Improving North White Oak Street. Integrating White Oak Street and College properties on its west side into a more welcoming and connected campus.
- Beautifying Lebanon Street. Introducing unit pavers and LVC lighting and signage standards to reestablish the street's importance as a pedestrian connector.
- Re-envisioning the Administration Building/Humanities Center Green. Returning this area to its historic intent by converting the drive and parking area in front of the building into a walkway.

Enhancing academic space through thoughtful rehabilitation and new construction:

- Developing North White Oak Street. Replacing the aging and undersized Gladys Fencil Building with a two-story academic facility between Liberty Street and Sheridan Avenue.
- Enhancing Main Street. Reinstating the historic connection to Main Street through the Laughlin renovations and a mixed-use facility on the site of the East Gate entrance.
- Making strategic renovations in Central Campus. Renovating aging buildings in the campus core.
- Leveraging new building sites on North Campus. The new Jeanne and Edward H. Arnold Health Professions Pavilion crystallizes North Campus as a beautiful extension of the campus core.
- Renovating the LVC Sports Center. Once the Physical Therapy Program migrates to the new Arnold Health Professions Pavilion, the newly vacated space in the LVC Sports

Center can be repurposed to satisfy the space needs of campus recreation and athletics.

- Repurposing the Heisey Barn. The old Heisey Farm barn could be a premier campus gathering space that offers spectacular views overlooking campus.

Expanding residential communities and diversifying housing options to improve student life:

- Expanding housing on North Campus. The plan establishes the importance of North Campus to expanding LVC's student housing offerings.
- Exploring increased housing and social space in Central Campus. The East Gate entrance and visitor lot, and the land surrounding the Peace Garden, offer potential opportunities for future residence halls.
- Enhancing the Allan W. Mund College Center. While there is a need for additional student center space on campus, opportunities in Mund College Center should be investigated as a first measure.

One Campus is a flexible plan designed to accommodate potential changes in programs, priorities, and funding. It is a dynamic road map that adapts to the needs of the LVC community as the College evolves over time.

In conjunction with the Envision 2020 strategic planning document, this master plan establishes a powerful tool for the College to wield in sustaining the LVC experience in a context of constant change. The plan seeks to establish One Campus, formed from diverse voices and reflective of the College's core values of celebrating inclusion, collaboration, and engagement.

Smith's husband and Leigh are second cousins whose great-grandmother, Eliza Howell Dey, twice hosted George Washington at her mansion in Wayne, N.J., during the Revolutionary War.

Jay S. Stanton '66 received a LVC Alumni Citation at the annual Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society and 150th Anniversary dinner in April. Stanton is a former science teacher and high school basketball coach who graduated from The Valley with a bachelor's degree in biology. He participated in basketball, cross country, and track & field at LVC,

In honor of its founding 150 years ago, Lebanon Valley College celebrates its historic anniversary. There will be numerous campus celebrations and many new memories made as The Valley looks forward to its next 150 years. Mark your calendar for our Homecoming Weekend 150th Anniversary Celebration, Oct. 7-9, 2016, and visit www.lvc.edu/150 to learn about other events, view the historic timeline, and purchase anniversary items.

The College recognized five families as new Lifetime Vickroy Associates during the annual Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society and 150th Anniversary dinner in April. The Vickroy Society was created in honor of LVC's founding president, Rev. Thomas Rhys Vickroy. Lifetime Vickroy Associates are a prestigious group of donors who have demonstrated their lasting commitment to support LVC. Each of these associates has given a total of $100,000 or more to the College during their lifetime, in addition to being active figures in their own communities.

The College proudly honored the following new Lifetime Vickroy Associates:

Kristen R. Angstadt, Ph.D., '74, a member of the Board of Trustees who currently serves as co-vice chair and on numerous committees. She was recognized for her service to the College with an Alumni Association Citation in 1999, and received the Hot Dog Frank Award in 2015 for her commitment to LVC athletics. In addition to actively engaging with her alma mater, Dr. Angstadt generously supports the College in numerous areas, including The Valley Fund, the Art & Visual Culture Department, and the David A.

Hoffman, M.D., Memorial Prize Fund. She and her late husband, Dr. David A. Hoffman, are recognized with spaces in the Vernon and Doris Bishop Library, Heilman Center, Neidig-Garber Science Center, and Clyde A. Lynch Memorial Hall.

Karen A. Lewis Schmitt '80 and Andrew W. Schmitt provide generous support to The Valley Fund and the Dr. Bryan Hearsey Scholarship for Actuarial Science. The Schmitts established the Karen Lewis

Schmitt '80 Scholarship for Actuarial Science in 2014, which allows the recipient to intern with Maiden Holdings, where Karen serves as president. Karen was a Lazin Resident in 2011 and has been a member of the College's Board of Trustees since 2013.

Benjamin B. Shankroff and Suzanne M. Shankroff are proud grandparents of Kelsey '13 and Jordan '15. Thanks to the Shankroff's generosity, LVC was able to reconfigure and upgrade its tennis courts this summer. The complex will be named the Shankroff Tennis Center in their honor. In addition, the Shankroffs have been longtime supporters of the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership and The Valley Fund.

John J. Stouffer '60 and Sandra Stetler Stouffer '62 are loyal supporters of The Valley Fund and the Music Department. They remain connected to the College through the "LVC Gang," a group of alumni who meet monthly for brunch. In addition, the Stouffers are members of the Miles Rigor Society, which recognizes and celebrates alumni and friends who have planned for Lebanon Valley College's future in their estate.

David P. Stover '91 and Tracey A. Smith Stover '91 continue to give back to their alma mater in a variety of ways. David remains actively engaged with former football coaches and teammates, supporting the Blue & White Club. Tracey is a member of the College's Board of Trustees and was vice chair of the Strategic Planning Committee, the group that gave rise to the College's current strategic plan, Envision 2020. Their generosity supports The Valley Fund, High-Impact Experiences in Athletics, and complex enhancements for athletics and recreation.

The 1961 Middle Atlantic Conference Southern Division Champion football team—the only team in the history of LVC football to win an outright championship—celebrated the 55th anniversary of its championship season with a reunion in Hilton Head, S.C., in March. FRIENDS OF THE COLLEGE

Andrea Emilie Bromberg died Feb. 17 in Santa Fe, N.M., at the age of 65. Bromberg had served as the executive assistant to LVC President John Synodinos, and for a short time, President David Pollick. She earned an MBA from the University of Montana and co-owned an independent book shop, The Children's Bookstore. She taught at various campuses of the Penn State University and served as co-director of the first Women in Management program at Harrisburg Area Community College. While living in New Mexico, she raised funds for the College of Fine Arts at the University of New Mexico, the Road Runner Food Bank, and the Georgia O'Keeffe Museum.

Walter Labonte died May 6 in Hummelstown at the age of 70. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army. He taught English at LVC for many years, where he also directed the Writing Center and Student Peer Tutor Program. He authored the Jason Snow mystery series and co-authored the musical Mindsets. Labonte is survived by his wife, Paula Stevens Labonte '03.

Joan Gilbert Wengert '53 died March 21 in Lititz at the age of 85. Born in Allentown, she was the daughter of Frederick Gilbert and Elizabeth Yost Gilbert. After graduating from Lancaster High School, Wengert attended LVC, earning one of the College's first degrees in medical technology.

An active undergraduate at LVC, Wengert was a member of Delta Lambda Sigma, the Quittapahilla yearbook staff, the Biology Club, the Delphian Society, and intramural basketball. She was secretary-treasurer of the Women's Commuter Club and a member of the Miss Quittie Court. After graduating, she attended the Harrisburg Hospital School of Medical Technology to further her education.

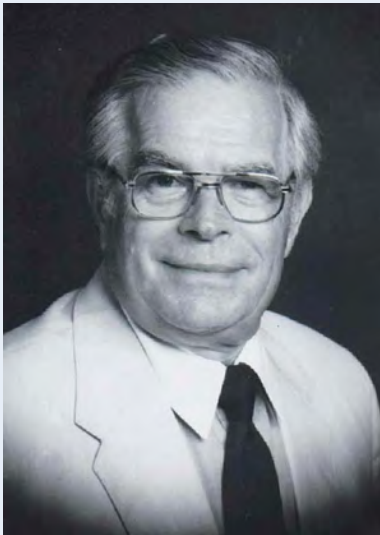

Wengert began her career as a registered medical technician in the pathology department of Good Samaritan Hospital and later at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine. She and her husband of 25 years, Clifford J. Wengert, were ardent supporters of various LVC programs and provided financial support to almost every College building erected or revitalized during the past several decades. Their support extended to The Valley Fund and Lebanon Valley Education Partnership, and in 2015, they were named Lifetime Vickroy Associates for their generosity and commitment to The Valley.

Wengert enjoyed gardening, quilting, knitting, and nine-hole golf. She was an avid reader, bridge player, and cryptogram solver. She enjoyed watching wildlife and raising Labrador Retrievers.

A member of the Highland Presbyterian Church since the 1960s, where she served as a deacon, Wengert was a loving wife and doting mother and grandmother. She is survived by her husband of 25 years, Clifford J. Wengert, and a sister, Anne Gilbert Means '49.

Rev. Daniel LeRoy Shearer '38, H'65, emeritus member of the LVC Board of Trustees, died March 31 in Lancaster at the age of 98. Rev. Shearer grew up on a farm in North Codorus Township, York County, and attended a one-room eight-grade public school before graduating from Spring Grove High School.

Arriving at Lebanon Valley College to study German in 1934, Rev. Shearer would remain closely connected to his alma mater for the next eight decades. After earning his bachelor of arts degree from LVC in 1938, he went on to earn master's degrees in sacred theology from the United Theological Seminary and Mount Airy Lutheran Seminary.

Licensed to preach in 1938 by the Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren in Christ Church, Rev. Shearer served several churches as a student pastor while attending seminary. He was ordained in 1941, and became pastor of the Silver Springs Charge in Lancaster County from 1941 to 1944. He later served the Harrisburg First Church (1944–1953), Ephrata First Church (1953–1962), and Hummelstown Trinity Church (1962–1968).

Rev. Shearer joined LVC's Board of Trustees in 1959 and served in various roles until retiring from the board with emeritus status in 1987. The College awarded Rev. Shearer an honorary doctor of divinity in 1965 for his lifetime of service to The Valley. He received an LVC Alumni Citation in 1988.

"Dan was a Christian gentleman in the best sense of the word," said Rev. Dr. J. Dennis Williams H'90, who served on the board with Rev. Shearer and was a church colleague as well. "He was a loyal churchman who served in varying roles, including as assistant to the Bishop. Dan was also an important member of the College community, with his service intersecting the transition from Evangelical United Brethren to United Methodist affiliation. He loved the College and had the rare gift of being able to make difficult decisions while continuing to be respected by all."

Rev. Shearer's family connections to LVC ran deep. Among his many family members who graduated from The Valley were his late wife, Irma Sheetz Shearer '36, two brothers: Rev. Monroe Julius Shearer Jr. '50 and Rev. Wilson Augustus Shearer '51, three of his four children: Daniel Shearer '62, James Shearer '68, and Patricia Shearer Larthey '72, and three grandsons: Andrew Shearer '93, Lawrence Larthey '00, and Derek Larthey '04.

Rev. Shearer's family connection to pastoral service was similarly deep: he was joined in the ministry by his father, Rev. Monroe Julius Shearer Sr., and two brothers, Rev. Monroe Julius Shearer Jr. and Rev. Wilson Augustus Shearer. Other ministers in the family included a brother-in-law and two nephews.

Rev. Shearer served in many capacities within the United Methodist Church and ecumenically. He was appointed district superintendent in the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the newly established United Methodist Church on Jan. 1, 1970. A little more than three years later, he was appointed conference program director. In 1980, he became superintendent of the State College District. After he retired in 1982, he served part-time as administrative assistant to the Bishop of the Harrisburg Episcopal Area of the United Methodist Church until 1991.

Rev. Shearer also served as a ministerial delegate to six General Conferences of the United Methodist Church, and as a member of the Executive Committee of the World Methodist Council. He was also a member of the General Board of Discipleship National Family Life Committee, president of the United Theological Seminary Alumni Association, director of youth conferences for 18 years, director of five Mission Work Caravans to Puerto Rico, chair of the Planning and Strategy Committee of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, member of the Cabinet of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, chair of the Northeastern Jurisdiction Association of Council Directors, chair of the Northeastern Jurisdictional Conference Rules Committee, and member of the Northeastern Jurisdictional Conference Executive Committee. He conducted more than 125 one-day tours as a volunteer guide to United Brethren in Christ, Evangelical, and Methodist historic sites in Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

After 41 years of living in parsonages, the Shearers purchased a home in the Hershey-Hummelstown area in 1982 and resided there until moving to the Willow Valley Retirement Communities in Lancaster in 1995. He was preceded in death by his wife of 73 years, Irma Sheetz Shearer '36.

Dr. Elizabeth Miller Bains '64, just the second woman to earn a physics degree at LVC, had a groundbreaking career at the National Aeronautical Space Administration (NASA) that included working with Astronaut Sally Ride. Dr. Bains died at home July 27, in Pearland, Texas, at the age of 73.

Born in Philadelphia and a graduate of Souderton High School, Dr. Bains was recruited to Lebanon Valley College by Dr. Jacob Rhodes '43, professor emeritus of physics, when her older sister visited campus as a prospective music student. Dr. Bains was active on campus serving as a member and officer in the Physics Club, a science assistant to the late Robert O'Donnell, professor emeritus of physics, and a member of Phi Sigma Sigma and La Vie Collegienne.

"Liz became a lifelong friend from the first day together in our freshman physics class in 1960," remembered Dr. Russel Hertzog '64. "We have been in constant touch with each other during the past 56 years. We did many visits to LVC together to see our friends at the College, especially Dr. Agnes and Bob O'Donnell, Dr. Jake Rhodes, and Dr. Arthur and Mary Ellen Ford. Liz was a great friend, and she will be missed."

After graduation, Dr. Bains served as a physicist at the U.S. Naval Weapons Laboratory for one year prior to earning her master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Tennessee. She then became an assistant professor of physics at Alcorn State University in Mississippi, where she taught for three years before becoming senior engineer at Lockheed Engineering Management & Services. In 1988, Dr. Bains joined NASA at the Johnson Space Center in Houston as an aerospace engineer, and, in 1990, was appointed deputy branch chief, simulation systems, from which she retired in 2013.

Dr. Bains was a high school junior when the Soviet Union launched Sputnik, the first satellite. In a 2015 interview, she recalled writing an essay about how space flight would influence history. "I had an interest in science, but not necessarily in space flight. I just sort of fell into it," referring to her successful career at NASA.

At NASA, Dr. Bains helped create the software for the computer simulators used to train America's astronauts. She was also in charge of analyzing how to assemble the International Space Station. In 2003, her primary focus was to develop procedures to repair damaged shuttle tiles while in space to prevent another shuttle from exploding on re-entry.

In addition to receiving several NASA Team Awards, Dr. Bains is a multiple recipient of NASA's National Exceptional

Achievement Medal (1995, 1996, 2005). She was awarded the 2005 medal for leading the effort to upgrade robotic simulations and to perform analysis of plans to use the Orbiter and Space Station arms in new ways for the Shuttle Return to Flight. Her extraordinary work was also recognized by the astronauts with whom she worked. In 1990, she received the Silver Snoopy Award, which best symbolizes the intent and spirit of Space Flight Awareness. An astronaut always presents the Silver Snoopy because it is the astronauts' own award for outstanding performance, contributing to flight safety, and mission success. Fewer than one percent of the aerospace program workforce receive it annually.

Dr. Bains always praised the opportunity she had to earn a liberal arts education and credits LVC for the excellent education she received in physics, as well as language and writing. She remained a loyal alumna, returning as a guest lecturer and contributing financially to numerous programs, including The Rhodes and O'Donnell Endowed Physics Research Fund in honor of her former faculty mentors. Her generosity was recognized when she became a Lifetime Vickroy Associate, the prestigious group of donors who have demonstrated their lasting commitment to support LVC by giving $100,000 or more to the College during their lifetime, in addition to being active figures within their own communities.

In 1995, Dr. Bains received an Alumni Citation from LVC, which was followed by a Professional Achievement Award in 2005. In 2015, she received the College's most prestigious alumni award, the Distinguished Alumna Award. In 2014, in preparation for LVC's 150th Anniversary, Dr. Bains participated in the oral history project and her interview can be read at www.lvc.edu/library/documents/archives/oralhistories/Bains.pdf.

Dr. Bains, and her husband, James, met in graduate school where they were doing dissertation work in the Ultrasonic Lab at the University of Tennessee. James went on to a successful career in the oil industry and the two worked together on several projects, one of which led to Dr. Bains receiving a patent.

Dr. Bains was an avid gardener, reader, bicyclist, swimmer, community volunteer, and community choir singer. She had the privilege of singing at Carnegie Hall and in Vienna, Austria. She loved to travel, journeying throughout the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Russia.

VICKROY CHALLENGE

IN HONOR OF LVC'S 150TH ANNIVERSARY

Two alumni donors have challenged those who care most about LVC to grow our Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society by 150 new members to mark the College's 150th Anniversary.

It's never been easier to join this leadership giving society for the first time or renew a lapsed membership:

1. Make a gift of $750 between July 1 and the end of the 150th Anniversary year (February 22, 2017), and
2. The challengers will contribute an extra $250 on your behalf and make you a year-long member.

*Thank you to all
408 current Vickroy
Society members.
Visit [www.lvc.edu/
Vickroy](http://www.lvc.edu/Vickroy) to see the names of these distinguished donors.*

Be one of our 150 emerging leaders—and help leverage $37,500 in gifts from the challengers!

Visit www.lvc.edu/give to make a gift or call 1-866-LVC-1866 (1-866-582-1866) for assistance.

Thank you to members of the 67 households below who rose to the 150th challenge (between April 15 and June 30) and either joined as first-time members or renewed a lapsed membership:
